

Dr. Monal Shroff is an experienced public health professional with a demonstrated history of working in nonprofit and academic settings as a research scientist, evaluator, and leader. Her training in Public Health Nutrition focused on intervention and policy research, and she has worked in several dimensions of the public health domain, from epidemiological and community-based intervention to policy research, evaluation, needs assessment, and environmental scan projects over the past 20 years. In her current role as a Research Scientist at the Michigan Public Health Institute (MPHI), she leads several applied research and evaluation projects for federal and state-funded initiatives through HRSA, CDC, SAMHSA, and foundations. Dr. Shroff received a PhD in Public Health Nutrition with a minor in Epidemiology from the University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill, School of Public Health, and an MPH in Nutrition from the University of Minnesota.